NASDAQ OMX Market Replay Europe is an extremely powerful replay and analysis tool, allowing users to view the data from major European exchanges at any point in time. Market Replay Europe will provide users with instant access to historical quote and trade data, helping to alleviate confusion and frustration from fragmentation between the European markets. Filter by exchange for a more targeted view of the market. Use the time-span analysis tool to view the highest and lowest priced quotes that existed over a specific span of time, even if they lasted less than a millisecond.

Replay and Analyze Market Activity – Down to the Millisecond

Traders and investors struggle with the question “What happened?” Market Replay Europe, a market analysis tool, answers that question by providing an extremely powerful replay of consolidated market intraday quote and trade data. It allows users to rewind and re-examine the order book and time-and-sales data at any point in time, providing the chance to review missed opportunities and execution quality. Users can navigate through time and replay events in real-time or speed them up and slow them down. They can zoom in to the sub-second level to see and analyze the detail of every market update, even quotes that last less than a millisecond.

Monitor Best Execution within Minutes of Your Trade

Brokers can use Market Replay Europe to monitor best execution compliance. Brokers and traders can view where their trades occurred within the different market center quotes. Brokers can send clients a NASDAQ OMX-validated screen shot of the moment their particular trade occurred, confirming the quality of the execution and reducing the number of customer inquiries.
